What Washingtonians and Their Friends Are Doing in Mid-summer—Bar Harbor Is Popular with Smart Set.

EVERYBODY has left town" is a remark heard frequently on all sides now, and in a partial sense it is true. A drive or walk up Connecticut avenue will soon convince one of its truth, so far as that thoroughfare is concerned, and so of all the fashionable avenues of the city.

The smart set and the official and executive sets have fled. Boarded entrances and windows stare back at one in uncompromising blankness and an air of loneliness and forsakenness meets one at every turn.

But one embassy is now open here—the Brazilian—and most of the legations are closed. The cabinet members to a man have sought comfort and recreation with their families elsewhere, and the congressional circle and other official sets are scattered in every direction for what the diplomats call "the heated term." That the name is a good one no one will deny who has been in town the last week.

But if nearly every one whose name is in the social register has gone, in the parlance of the day, "there are a few of us left."

Try to go to Glen Echo, Great Falls, or Chevy Chase, and you will find that there are still several hundreds—not to say thousands—of persons left at the Capital. Trolley lines all over the city are crowded, places of amusement are filled with an eager crowd seeking comfort and pleasure, restaurants and cafes are still well patronized, and even the theaters, in spite of the heat, are playing to good audiences.

All of which goes to prove that there are still in town many persons whose interests keep them here, and whose "doings" and amusements mean as much to them as do the social affairs of the so-called smart set.

Of the Washingtonians who have left town and gone to cooler climes, it is interesting to note how they flock in broods. Last Sunday, The Washington Herald showed how the fashionable from the Capital had besieged and taken possession of the North Shore of Massachusetts. Aside from the Bostonians, who, of course, have known and loved the North Shore for years, and the New Yorkers, who have become acquainted with it in the last few summers, and come in ever-increasing numbers, it is safe to say that the Washingtonians will outnumber this season any other colony from any given place.

But while society from the Capital has gone to the North Shore in great numbers, it has not overlooked the pleasures and cool temperature of Bar Harbor, and many have taken cottages there for the summer season.

In the diplomatic corps, the Austrian Ambassador and the Baroness Hengelmüller have always favored this Maine resort, and though they are abroad this summer, the ambassador's representative, Baron Ambrósio, has followed the lead of his chief, and as charge d'affaires has established the Austro-Hungarian Embassy at Bar Harbor.

Another diplomatic home there is the Norwegian Legation, with M. Hauge and his American wife at its head. M. and Mme. Hauge were very anxious to settle at Manchester-by-the-Sea, Magnolia, or some other resort of the North Shore, and made two trips to Boston in their efforts to get a summer cottage there. None that suited their taste and requirements seemed available, however, and they, too, drifted to Bar Harbor, where they have leased "The Moorings." With them are Mme. Hauge's mother, Mrs. Todd, of Louisville, and Mme. Hauge's young son, Frederick Joy, who spends his winters at his home and his mother, who, to humor the lad, spends her summers in this, his native land, which he prefers to any foreign resorts.

Mrs. Harriet Blaine Beale, daughter of James G. Blaine, is at Bar Harbor for the season, having taken the Charles Wood cottage on High street.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Addison are at their summer home there, Rockburne Cottage, on Woodbury road.

Mrs. Marcus A. Hanna and Miss Phelps, who spent the spring in Europe, and the early summer at their home in Cleveland, are now at Seal Harbor, one of the smaller resorts, nestled near Bar Harbor.

Mrs. Horatio N. Slater has a new bungalow on Bar Island, off Bar Harbor. She calls the cottage "Captain Rough It," and as the captain is the sole possessor of the island, Mrs. Slater is delightfully situated.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. McLean have, within the last few days, opened their cottage at Bar Harbor.

Former Senator and Mrs. John B. Henderson are also summering there. They have taken the Gleneyrie, and will remain until late in the autumn.

Col. Charles Alexander and Miss Alexander are ensconced in the Maisonette, at Bar Harbor, for the summer.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Crowninshield are at the Anchorage, at Seal Harbor, for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Hennen Jennings and their daughter and son, Miss Katherine and Coleman Jennings, are at the Malverne for the summer.

Gen. and Mrs. Wallace F. Randolph and the Misses Randolph are at York Harbor, where they will remain until October, returning to their Washington home then.

Miss Celeste Eustis, Miss Bessie Martin, and Miss Anne Bye are occupying the Mare Vista cottage, at Bar Harbor.

Dr. and Mrs. Guy F. Whitling, Miss Alice V. D. Whitling, and Miss Julia B. Whitling are settling for the summer at Villa Mary, at Bar Harbor.

Mrs. C. K. Wright and family have taken the Hinch cottage, in High street, at Bar Harbor.

Mr. and Mrs. George Vanderbilt, of New York, who spent the official season in the Capital last winter, have left Baltimore, their North Carolina estate, where they entertained many house parties composed largely of Washingtonians, and are now at their Bar Harbor villa, Point d'Arcade.

Among the most interesting summer residents of this popular Northern resort are Dr. Weir Mitchell, the eminent physician and novelist, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Mitchell, who has taken for the summer Far Niente.

Poland Springs, Me. Among those who have registered at the Poland Springs hotels so far this season are Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Harban, Mr. and Mrs. Crosby S. Noves, Miss Louise Martin, Mrs. Alexander Murray, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Flather, William J. Flather, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Whitford, Mrs. A. T. Salter, Miss M. O. McConney, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Stellwagen, Gen. Charles C. Byrne, U. S. A., Frederick Moss, Col. James Oakes, U. S. A., and Rear Admiral Theodore Frelinghuysen Jewell, U. S. N.

Other guests of the early season, who are well known in Washington society, were Mrs. Garrett A. Hobart, widow of the Vice President, with her son and his wife, who is a granddaughter of ex-Senator William F. Frye; Hon. Bartlett Tripp, formerly Minister to Austria; Hon. William Wilgely Thomas, formerly Minister to Sweden; ex-Senator Frye, and others.

There is much activity among the golf players here, and in the tournaments on the links Washington players are noted. Dr. W. S. Harban is one of the most expert of the hundreds of golfers who play over the Poland Springs course. Admiral Jewell and William J. Flather and his son, William J. Flather, Jr., have made a good showing in the tournament held this week.

Senator Don Enrique Cortes, the Minister from Colombia, before sailing for England last week closed a lease upon the handsome home of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Merriam, 128 M street, where the legation will be established October 1. The house is much larger and handsomer than the one in Twenty-first street, occupied by the Minister and Mme. Cortes last winter, and is better fitted for entertaining, which was a prime reason for the change.

WEDDINGS.

An interesting marriage ceremony was celebrated Friday, July 19, at noon, at St. Margaret's Chapel, Westminster, England, the scene of so many American weddings, when Miss Lillian Brechemin, daughter of Lieut. Col. Louis Brechemin, of the United States army, became the wife of Dr. David Moffat Gillespie, of New York. The bride was escorted and given away by her father, and was attended by Miss Helen De Young, Capt. Sydney A. Cloman, the American military attaché to the Court of St. James, was the best man.

The bride, who is a blonde, was robed in a gown of white and lace and wore a crown of pearls and diamonds, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. De Young. She also had on a brooch of diamonds and rubies, the gift of the groom. Miss Helen De Young wore a gown of pink chiffon trimmed with Valenciennes lace and a large white lace covered with flowers. Among those who attended the ceremony and the wedding breakfast at the Westminster Palace Hotel were Mrs. Mary Gillespie, mother of the groom; Mrs. Brechemin, mother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. M. H. De Young, of San Francisco, and their daughters, Helen, Constance, and Kathleen; Mrs. Helen Capron and Mrs. Natalie, of Washington; Capt. and Mrs. Cloman, and Sigmond Beal, of San Francisco.

The couple will make a tour of England this summer and then will return to New York to reside.

The bridegroom is a nephew of the namesake of David Moffat, the Denver financier.

The announcement was made last week in London of the engagement of Miss Florence Padelford, daughter of Mrs. Ernest Cunard by her former marriage, and the Hon. Robert Victor Grosvenor, eldest son and heir of Lord Ebury. Friends of Miss Padelford have known for some time that the engagement existed, but no official announcement was made by the family until after it was given out in the London papers, as Miss Padelford preferred that the announcement be made in England, where she has made her home for the past few years. The wedding will take place in the autumn.

Interesting to Washingtonians is the announcement of the engagement of Mr. Frank T. Hamilton, of the Merchants' National Bank, and a high official in the affairs of the Omaha Gas Company and the Omaha and Council Bluffs Street Railway Company, to Countess Louise de Cistac de Gramont, of France. The wedding will take place at the beautiful country home of Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, in California.

Dr. James Truman Eakin, of 1517 Fourteenth street northwest, and Miss Katherine G. Raymond, of Frankfort, Ky., were married last Thursday by Justice of the Peace Daniel M. Emerson, of East Aurora, N. Y. The wedding took place at 11 o'clock and had the distinction of being the first ever performed in the quaint little Roycroft chapel, where Elbert Hubbard, otherwise known as Fra Elbertus, holds forth. Two hundred Roycrofters and villagers were present.

The ceremony was brief, and similar to that of justice in the country towns where they are called upon to administer such duties.

It was the intention of the bride and bridegroom to keep the matter quiet until after the ceremony. Lyman Chandler, who is one of the classic and shining lights of the Roycroft establishment, was acquainted with the couple. He had heard that a love affair had grown out of the acquaintance. It was to him the lovers went for counsel.

A few days ago, Dr. James T. Eslin arrived at the Roycroft Inn.

He attended the convention of the Philistines and decided to remain for a while.

Quite a colony of Washington people are among the guests of the hotels at in East Aurora, to enjoy the quiet restfulness of the place. About the same time Miss Raymond arrived from Frankfort, Ky. It was only a day or two after they were introduced the love affair began, which has been watched in its progressive stages by the Roycrofters with much interest.

Mr. and Mrs. George Washington Sadler have issued cards announcing the marriage of their daughter, Miss Kathleen E. Cromwell Sadler, to Dr. Houston Boyd Hiatt, of Clinton, N. C. The wedding took place in Washington Monday, July 8. After September 1, Dr. and Mrs. Hiatt will be at home at Clinton, N. C.

Miss Myrtle Snidow, of Roanoke, Va., who recently spent a year at school in Washington, was married Wednesday, July 17, to Mr. R. H. Dowdy, of Blacksburg, Va. Mr. and Mrs. Dowdy are spending their honeymoon in this city at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. G. W. Barkman.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Broas announce the marriage of their niece, Miss Ella Goodrich, to Mr. William B. Payne, at their home July 17. The couple will be at home to friends after September 1 at the Susquehanna.

A surprise supper, followed by a reception, was given at Northeast Temple, Twelfth and H streets, Thursday night, by Liberty Council, No. 6, Daughters of America, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Miller, who were married at Christ Episcopal Church, navy yard, June 28. Both Mr. and Mrs. Miller are members of the council. The hall was decorated with bunting and the long table which was covered with tablecloths embroidered with American flags and eagles was decorated with ferns and huge clusters of phlox and nasturtiums. Covers were laid for 100 persons. The president of the council, on behalf of its members, presented Mr. and Mrs. Miller with a cut-glass pitcher and half a dozen tumblers. After supper was served the floor was cleared and dancing was indulged in until a late hour. Another feature of the evening was the musical programme. Miss Little Ella Miller, who is also a member of the council, played a number of piano solos.

PERSONALS.

Mr. Arenas de Lima, second secretary of the Portuguese embassy in Paris, who has been acting as Portuguese charge here for the last two months, sailed yesterday from New York with Mme. de Lima.

They go first to Paris for an indefinite stay and then home on leave. M. and Mme. de Lima were interesting and charming, and Washington society suffered a loss in their return to Europe. As they did not arrive here until after the close of the social season, they were known but little, but they were popular with their conferees in the corps, especially their close associates, the members of the Brazilian Embassy. The Ambassador and Mme. Nabuco, and the counselor of the embassy and Mme. Gurgel do Amaral entertained them frequently.
